On an evening that threatened to rain all night, 2,500 MMA fans were treated to an action pack card as Cage Combat Fighting brought Rumble in the Park II to Fresno, Calif.

In attendance [were] a "who's who" in the MMA world: 5X UFC Champ Tito Ortiz was a special guest along with current UFC welterweight contender Josh Koscheck. Also taking in the action was Strikeforce Champion Josh Thomson, UFC veteran Dave Terrell and the "Iceman" Chuck Liddell.

On the card [were] two championship fights and in the co-main events two Fresno residents attempting to defend their [city's] honor.

In the co-main event Casey "The Underdog" Olson (10-2) used his superior wrestling skill to take down Tony Boyles (4-3) and submit his opponent with a head-and-arm choke in the first round.

Boyles came out swing[ing] for a knockout, but Olson... secured a body lock for the takedown. Boyles attempted a triangle choke, but Olson used this opportunity to move from full guard to side control. From [there] Olson reigned down elbows until he seized... [a] lock [to] the choke.
