

Fresno's Casey "The Underdog" Olson Steals Show at Rumble in the Park

Aug. 25, 2008

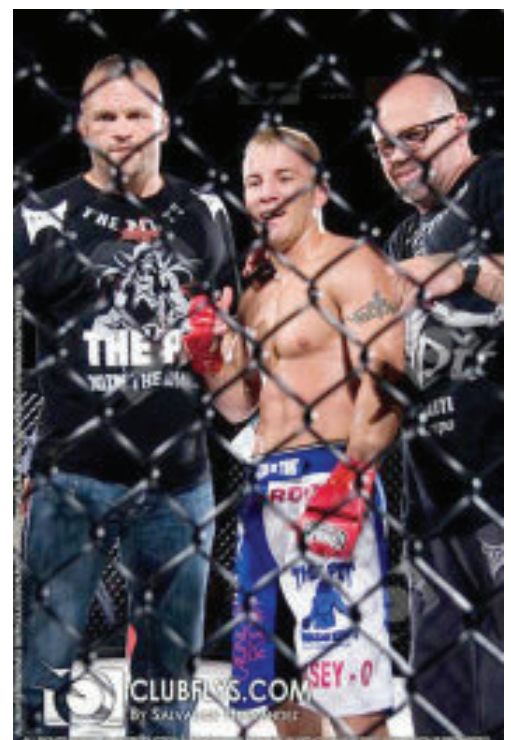

By Ivan Martinez

Casey "Underdog" Olson (8-2) vs. Aaron "Bloodspiller" Miller (5-3)

Just when you thought it couldn't have got any better on the fight card, local Fresno hero Casey "The Underdog" Olson stepped into the cage to square off with a game-faced Aaron Miller from El Monte, California. The bell opened round one and Olson delivered a nicely placed outside leg kick. Miller showed composure and instantly returned the same leg kick that was almost simultaneous with Olson's.

Olson wasted no more time and brought a reluctant Miller down with a smooth takedown. The ground game continued to give Olson the edge with Miller on bottom in a North-South position, and later pulling Olson into his guard. While the fighters scrambled for dominance on the ground, Olson displayed some technical wizardry and applied [an arm triangle] to Miller and ended the fight in his favor with four minutes and 30 seconds into round one.

A proud and supportive Fresno crowd was happy to see the "Underdog" notch another win under his belt and continue to put Fresno on the map for mixed martial arts.

fresnofusion.com

Photos: Sal Hernandez/clubflys.com