In the Rumble in the Park co-main event, local hero Casey "The Underdog" Olson dominated and outmatched Aaron Miller, as he locked in an arm triangle for the tapout 4:30 into round one.

Olson (9-2) has rattled off three consecutive victories, two of them by submission, since his knockout loss to World Extreme Cagefighting veteran Olaf Alfonso in February.

Olson came out looking to strike, but when Miller (5-4) clinched, he grabbed a double leg and slammed his opponent to the canvas. Once the action went to the mat, Olson controlled Miller with superior wrestling.

He cinched the fight-ending arm triangle so quickly that many in the capacity crowd did not even know [that] Miller [had] tapped [out].
